

PRESS RELEASE

ON ADRIATICLNG.IT A NEW MULTIMEDIA AREA TO DISCOVER THE REGASIFICATION PROCESS

Adriatic LNG launches a new information multi media area to explain in a clear, easy and technically sound way the different steps of the regasification process that take place on board the offshore terminal. Directly linked from the company's homepage, this interactive new area is intended for students, citizens and all those interested in seeking to better understand the Adriatic LNG's terminal and its operations and technologies.

"Regasification is quite a simple process heating the LNG until the point it turns to the gas state" - Adriatic LNG's Managing Director, Alistair Routledge, announced – "Using animations and audio we created one more communication tool in order to make it easy for everyone to understand how our terminal works".

Terminale GNL Adriatico Srl, known as Adriatic LNG, is the company that designed, built and is responsible for operational management of the Adriatic LNG Terminal located offshore Porto Levante, in the province of Rovigo, 15 kilometers away from the coast. The terminal is the first reinforced concrete offshore facility in the world for the reception, storage and regasification of liquefied natural gas (LNG). The terminal is playing a significant role in increasing and diversifying sources of imported energy in Italy, contributing to the security and competitiveness of energy supply of the country. Terminale GNL Adriatico is an Italian joint venture, which was founded in 2005 by three major energy groups: Qatar Petroleum, ExxonMobil and Edison. Safety, Health and Environment represent the core values of the company, which operates in compliance with all applicable Italian and European laws and with the most stringent international standards applied to every kind of work activities.
